CREATE A WATERCOLOR WILDFLOWER SCENE

Join Lisa Krueger as she teaches you a fun way of creating wildflowers using a throwing technique. After the initial tossing of the paint and we sprinkle a little water to make them grow, the brush is used to pull flowers out of the background. After drying, we will enhance flowers with a few details. Anyone can create these simple flowers using this fun method. No experience is necessary. We will be working on small pieces of Arches watercolor paper. All supplies are included in the class price.

About Artist –

Lisa Krueger lives in Tomahawk, Wisconsin, where she is inspired by the beauty of the Northwoods. She works in a variety of mediums, such as; watercolor, pastel, acrylics, mixed media, and alcohol ink. Lisa also enjoys sharing with others by teaching and helping her students grow creatively, and to enjoy their artistic process. Her art can be found in area galleries, and the public can view her work at her creative space - Oak View Studio, as a part of the Northwoods Art Tour.
